New Delhi

The Department of Economics, University of Rajasthan is organizing a ten days workshop on “Research Methodology” from March 20th to 29th, 2014 with an aim of imparting knowledge on various aspects of research. The branches of Social Sciences deal with interlinked relationships of society and human behavior. In order to understand the complexities involved, the theories as well as quantitative applications are very essential. The available techniques of research can help the budding researchers, academicians and professional practitioners to improve the quality of their work and contribution to the society. In this backdrop, the present research workshop aims to make the researchers familiar with the available tools of conducting a research.

OBJECTIVES

The workshop is designed to train the participants with the latest tools of research in the field of Social Science. The course also intends to impart the analytical skills to the researchers to decide upon the appropriate research-methods and techniques.
